WREN ON BARTINE.

Some of Mr. Bartine's Fallacies Exposed—Facts Against Mistrustments.

Eureka, March 10, 1894.

Editor State Journal:—Mr. Bartine, according to the report of the Gazette, used the following language at the "Republican rally" of the 24th ult.: "The Republican party has given us all the beneficial legislation upon the silver question." In his letter to the Gazette of February 24th he does not deny that he used that language.

Now, Mr. Bartine knew when he made that assertion that the Republican party had not "given us all the beneficial legislation." We know that a Democratic House of Representatives passed the "Bland Bill," that nearly all the Democrats in the House and Senate voted for it; that practically all the opposition to the bill came from Republican Senators and members of the House; that a Republican President vetoed it and that it was passed over his veto by a Democratic House, not aided by a large Republican vote, however, for in 1878 the Republican party was not as completely under the control of Wall street as it was when Mr. Bartine was in Congress. At that time—1878—nearly one-half of the Republicans were in favor of the free coinage of silver.

Mr. Bartine, according to his letter, also used the following language: "The most extreme anti-silver men in Congress are Democrats from New York, New England, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Ohio." Mr. Bartine knows better. He knows that it would be impossible for the Democrats from those States to be more extreme in their anti-silver sentiments and utterances than the Republicans from those States. For twenty years the Republican members of the House and Senate have almost without exception been the bitter and implacable enemies of the free coinage of silver. But for the Republicans from those States silver would have been remonetized long ago.

What Mr. Bartine said about the divisions in the Democratic party on the silver party is quite true. There are two wings in that party on that question, but Mr. Bartine omitted to say that there are not silver men enough in the Republican party to make a wing, practically that party is solid "goldbug."

Mr. Bartine claims the passage of the "Sherman law" for the Republican party and the claim is true. But was that legislation beneficial to silver? At the extra session of Congress last Summer John Sherman asserted that the law that bears his name was passed to prevent the passage of a free coinage bill. This assertion seems to be born out by the fact that this same John Sherman introduced a bill in the Senate to repeal the purchasing clause of the Sherman law in the Spring of 1892. The Republicans had taken the initiative for the repeal of this law before the formation of the Silver party had been advocated and it was this fact amongst others that impelled Republicans to join in the Silver movement in this State. If the act had been honestly administered no doubt it would have been a beneficial law and would have greatly helped silver and silver legislation, but it was not honestly administered by the Harrison Administration, and was not honestly administered by the Cleveland Administration. The Republican Administration set Cleveland a bad example and his administration, being prone to evil, not only followed, but improved upon it. In brief, the Republicans passed the "Sherman law," administered it against the interests of the people and of silver, proposed its repeal almost as soon as it was passed and helped repeal it by an almost solid vote at the first opportunity, and yet a gentleman who says he is a silver man claims merit for the Republican party for passing the Sherman law.

Mr. Bartine, according to his letter, alluded to the free trade policy of the Democratic party and said: "I instance Mr. Bland as being just as strongly in favor of free trade as free coinage." Mr. Bartine knows, or ought to know, that the Democratic party never had a free trade policy, that there never was a national party in the United States in favor of free trade; that the Democratic party has always been in favor of a tariff for revenue with incidental protection, and I venture to assert that Mr. Bartine cannot point to a single free trade utterance or vote of Mr. Bland, during the whole time he had been in public life, in favor of free trade. The fact should not be lost sight of that Mr. Bartine made this unwarrantable charge against Mr. Bland at the very time that Mr. Bland was making a gallant struggle for silver in the House against the filibustering opposition of nearly all the Republican members, led by Tom Reed, assisted by a few anti-silver Democrats.

TOM WREN.

A MURDERER CAPTURED.

The Man Who Killed Mrs. Eggleston Now in Jail.

A private letter from Genoa conveys the information that the man who so brutally murdered Mrs. Eggleston near Coleville last Thursday, has been captured. He has only one leg and his name is Dick Watkins. He is distantly related to the murdered lady by marriage, but the motive for the crime is not apparent.

An attempt was made to lynch him, but he was surrounded by armed men by the Sheriff.

This is Watkins' second murder. Some years ago while out in the woods with a little boy, he became angry with him for some trifling offense, made him say his prayers and then deliberately murdered him. It was some time before the crime was discovered, and then the matter was allowed to blow over, as Watkins is a dangerous man and much feared.

Further particulars of the capture could not be learned.

To Freight with Teams.

M. Cohn is in earnest in regard to his plans to put on teams to haul freight from Sacramento to Carson this Spring. He says since his scheme was mentioned in the papers he has received a great deal of encouragement from the business men, both here and Bridgeport and Podie, who are tired of paying the high freight rates charged by the railroad company. He intends to start a number of his own teams as soon as the road is open, and says he has received letters from teamsters in California and elsewhere who are anxious to come here and put teams on the road. If the railroad company does not lower its rates the teams should be started by all means. They will require feed, and the money now being paid to the railroad will be distributed at home.—Genoa Courier.

A Correction.

M. Langevin, referred to in yesterday's issue as having sworn to a complaint against the Wiggins Bros., of Empire, regarding the safety of a well, which it was claimed he had never seen, states that he signed a notification served on the above mentioned gentlemen, and that he had seen the well before he signed the notice.
